

Assistant Professor of African-American Studies/History

Penn State Altoona invites applicants for a tenure-line Assistant Professorship in African American Studies/History, to begin Fall 2022 (or thereafter, as agreed upon). The successful candidate, whose tenure home will be History, will teach courses in African American History as well as introductory courses in African American Studies. Duties may also include teaching cross-listed courses in Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies, other related areas of humanities and/or Communication Arts & Sciences, as deemed appropriate. Faculty are also expected to engage in collaborative and/or community research and perform/participate in relevant service activities.

Requirements: Ph.D. in History, African American Studies, or a related field by the start date.

For full consideration, applicants are required to submit a cover letter, a curriculum vitae that includes three references, a teaching philosophy, and recent student teaching evaluations combined into a single PDF document.

One of the 20 campuses in the Pennsylvania State University system, Penn State Altoona is an undergraduate residential college of nearly 3000 students, located in Central Pennsylvania, within a 2-4-hour drive of several major metro areas, including Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, DC, and Baltimore. Penn State Altoona's classes are small, with a low student/faculty ratio. Within this small college atmosphere, its faculty also have all the recourses of a major research institution at their disposal. The successful candidate will join a community of faculty actively engaged in research, dedicated to undergraduate education, and committed to the promotion of diversity and inclusiveness.

Penn State is committed to and accountable for advancing diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging in all its forms. We embrace individual uniqueness, foster a culture of inclusion and belonging that supports both broad and specific diversity initiatives, and leverage the educational and institutional benefits of diversity. We value inclusion and belonging as core strengths and essential elements of our public service mission.
