

Submitter Institution: University of South Carolina

Submitter Phone: 803-777-9604

Department: Anthropology

Position Title: Tenure-track Assistant Professor

Institution is Seeking: The faculty of the Department of Anthropology at the University of South Carolina (UofSC), in Columbia, seek an anthropological archaeologist for a tenure-track assistant professorship beginning August 16, 2022 with a focus on the African Diaspora in the Americas or Atlantic Africa. Scholars whose research, teaching and service interests intersect with (post)colonialism, slavery, post-emancipation studies, race, or modernity/modern life are especially encouraged to apply, though the position is open regarding methodological expertise. Ideal candidates will also have the ability to contribute to our ongoing research and service addressing anti-racism and diversity/inclusion matters.

Qualifications: Applicants must hold a Ph.D. degree in Anthropology by the time of the appointment.

Application Procedures: All applicants must fill out an online application through the University's online employment system at <https://uscjobs.sc.edu/postings/106976>. Candidates must upload a CV, a cover letter describing research, teaching, and service interests, a writing sample, and the names and contact information for three references. Complete applications must be received no later than December 15th, 2021. Interested applicants can send questions or correspondence to the search committee chair, Dr. Terrance Weik, via email, at weik@mailbox.sc.edu.

Application Deadline: December 15, 2021

Do not post after: December 15, 2021