

Faculty Specialist II-Lecturer - Intercultural and Anthropological Studies

Major Duties

- Teach 12 credit hours of courses in anthropology and archeology per semester, including required and/or elective anthropology courses and WMU Essential Studies courses.
- Serve as the associate director for the Institute for Intercultural and Anthropological studies, assisting the IAS director with coordination of anthropology course offerings, and leading curriculum development and assessment for anthropology program and anthropology WMU Essential Studies courses.
- Contribute toward Institute activities such as student recruitment and advising, as well as organizing extra-curricular programming relevant to the program (e.g., inviting outside speakers, collaborating with the community).
- Other duties and service as assigned by the unit's director.
- Scholarship activity that informs and complements teaching is desirable, but not required.

Minimum Qualifications

- PhD in anthropology or a closely related field.
- Minimum of 5 years teaching experience at the college level as the instructor of record.
- Experience coordinating a general education or major program of study.
- Teaching expertise in archaeology of the Mediterranean and/or Middle East.

Desired Qualifications

- 2 or more years of experience serving as an associate director or chair of an anthropology program or department.
- Experience developing, teaching and assessing general education courses.

Required Applicant Documents

- Cover Letter highlighting your qualifications
- Curriculum Vitae
- List of References

Special Instructions to Applicants

In the other category, please submit the following:

- teaching philosophy,
- 2 sample anthropology syllabi
- summary of most recent teaching evaluations
- diversity, equity and inclusion statement

Apply at <https://wmich.edu/hr/jobs>

Job #0605771

WMU is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Minorities, women, protected veterans, individuals with disabilities and all other qualified individuals are encouraged to apply.