Department: Sociology

Position Title: Assistant Professor of Sociology

Institution is Seeking: The Department of Sociology invites applicants with primary teaching and research specialties in the Sociology of Education. A secondary area in the Sociology of Crime and Deviance is especially desirable. We are particularly interested in candidates who are teacher-scholars with a commitment to critical perspectives and social justice. CSUF faculty are committed teacher-scholars who bring research and creative discovery to life for students in classrooms, labs, studios, and individually mentored projects. The primary responsibilities of the person in this position will include the development and teaching of undergraduate and graduate courses in their substantive area, as well as core courses in the discipline, and the development of courses in their area(s) of specialization. We are specifically looking for those candidates enthusiastic about teaching Sociology of Education at both the undergraduate and graduate level. We particularly welcome candidates who can also teach one or more of the following courses: Deviant Behavior, Law and Society, Criminology, Mass Incarceration, Juvenile Delinquency, or The American Drug Scene. Faculty generally teach 3 classes per semester. A reduced teaching load is provided for the first two years. This person will also be responsible for engaging in scholarly endeavors resulting in peer-reviewed publications commensurate with the requirements for tenure. Candidates must provide evidence of an ability to work collaboratively in an interdisciplinary and student-centered environment. The successful candidate will also be expected to contribute to and participate in the life and development of the department, work with graduate students and supervise M.A. theses and projects, serve on committees, and participate in the broader university and disciplinary communities.

Qualifications:

A Ph.D. in Sociology or a relevant field by August 2023 required. To be considered, ABD applicants must include their application materials, transcripts, and supporting documentation (e.g., letters from advisors, an indication of oral defense date, sample dissertation chapters, etc.) indicating that their degree completion will occur before August 2023. Demonstrated commitment to and excellence in teaching a diverse student population, including first-generation college students, low-socioeconomic students, and racially minoritized students. A strong record or potential of scholarly accomplishments appropriate to the level of appointment A realistic future research agenda and evidence of ongoing involvement in research activity Ability to balance excellent teaching, scholarship, and service Demonstrated commitment to working effectively with students, faculty, and staff from intersecting marginalized social groups Demonstrated commitment to social justice or other critical perspectives in their teaching and research Demonstrated contributions to equity through scholarship, teaching, and service Note applicants who do not meet all required qualifications may not move forward in the search. Preferred Qualifications Specialization in the Sociology of Education and Sociology of Crime and Deviance

Application Procedures:

A complete on-line application must be received by electronic submission to be considered. To apply, please visit <http://hr.fullerton.edu/careers/Faculty.php>, choose full-time faculty, search for Job #516439, and provide the following required materials: - Letter of application describing teaching and research experience and interests including the areas of specialization and how you incorporate a social justice or critical orientation to these areas into your research, teaching, and service. - Curriculum vitae - Teaching philosophy statement - Evidence of high-quality teaching and teaching excellence—including, but not limited to copies of student evaluation with interpretive information and other measures of teaching excellence (e.g., peer or faculty observations) - Graduate school transcript(s) (Unofficial transcripts to be accepted during the application process; Official transcripts required upon the start of appointment if selected) - Documentation of research agenda (e.g., publications or links to publications, examples or brief summaries of works in progress, etc.) - Candidate statement on commitment to inclusive excellence. This statement provides the candidate's unique perspective on their past and present contributions to and future aspirations for promoting diversity, inclusion, and social justice in their professional careers. We are particularly interested in discussion of your experiences, successes, and challenges in teaching and mentoring students from a diverse student population. The purpose of this statement is to help the department identify candidates who have professional experience, intellectual commitments, and/or willingness to engage in activities that could help CSUF contribute to its mission in these areas (approximately one to two pages, single spaced). - Three letters of reference: On the References page of the online application, enter information and email addresses for three referents who will provide a confidential letter of reference for your application. They will receive a request via email along with information on uploading the letter. You will be able to verify that each letter has been received by CSUF by logging back into your applicant portal.
