

Slavery and its Aftermaths

Department of African American and African Studies

College of Arts and Sciences

Position Overview

The Ohio State University invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in the Department of African American and African Studies to start on August 15, 2024. We are seeking a scholar working in the mid-19th through the 20th centuries in the Americas (including the U.S.) whose research demonstrates innovative historiographic methods and novel approaches to the study of slavery's world-defining impacts. The successful candidate will both research and teach a wide range of archival materials which could include oral sources, antiquities, literature, electronic media, and creative works, and focus on the US and/or the Americas from a global perspective. Teaching and research areas of interest might include Black identity and community-formation in "the long 20th century," the US Civil War and/or Reconstruction era, the Nadir, the Jim Crow and Civil Rights eras, or a comparative examination of these, or similar movements throughout the Americas. Especially welcome are teaching and research interests in anti-slavery campaigns, Black liberation struggles, and cultural, political, and artistic movements responding to institutionalized forms of racism and discrimination. The successful candidate will teach courses across the full range of the department's curriculum, from introductory to upper division seminars, as well as general education courses and those that reflect their research expertise.

Education and Experience Requirements

Required: PhD in hand by August 15, 2024, in Black studies, history, or a related field. ABDs welcome to apply. Candidates should demonstrate achievement or strong promise of scholarly success.

Desired: Candidates should demonstrate a commitment to building a culturally diverse intellectual community, in line with Ohio State's Shared Values (see below).

How to Apply

Apply to the Careers at Ohio State website at <https://osujoblinks.com/dbh2>. A competitive application consists of the following required elements: a cover letter, curriculum vitae, separate research and teaching statements, and three letters of reference.

You will be presented with the opportunity to attach up to FIVE documents in the Application Documents section. Please include the following:

- Attachment 1: Cover Letter: 1-2 page letter, which should include a brief summary of your academic background and why you are interested in this opportunity.
- Attachment 2: CV (Curriculum Vitae): Detailed overview of your scholarly experience, including your research experience, teaching and mentoring experience, service, funding, and publications.
- Attachment 3: Research Statement: Summary of your past research accomplishments, current work/research, and proposal for your future research plan as a faculty member.
- Attachment 4: Teaching Statement: A statement of your approaches, experience and philosophy regarding your teaching, learning, and mentoring.

You will be asked for names and contact information for three reference letters at a later date.

Review of applications will begin on December 10 and continue until the position is filled. Inquiries may be directed to Ousman Kobo at kobo.1@osu.edu
